

It's comical, some of the things that go on out there.

We keep getting calls from people that thought they rented a limousine bus at another company, but then they find out it's an old airport shuttle bus, or an old school bus.

Our favorite is the guy with mice in his bus. You see, this Cincinnati company buys old airport shuttle busses – usually with 250,000 mile or more on them. He then rips out the interiors and installs his own pathetic version of a “limousine” bus interior. As you can imagine, they don't exactly look great, and are frankly extremely dangerous. I sure wouldn't want to be sitting in one of his homemade seats if that vehicle is in a wreck! Can you say “Airborne”!!

Also, he has holes in the floor of the “limo” where the old bus style seats bolted into the floor. Mice seem to love to crawl in the limo, and make nests, leave droppings, etc. Yuck!

As you can imagine, this “vehicle” is cheap to rent, but wow – can you believe that anyone would?

Believe it.

Watch out – the “Oh no – crappy limo” companies are lurking!

Ask the obvious question when shopping for a limousine bus:

- Is this a limousine bus or a school bus?
- Does the vehicle have bus style seating or limousine style seating (wrap-around seating)?
- Was the vehicle originally a limousine bus, or is it converted from a school bus or airport shuttle bus?
